Be A Guest Of The Northfield Herald At The Lawler Theatre

Beginning with this issue of The Herald there will be six different ads in which there is a mis-spelled word enclosed by parenthesis—read all the ads and find the six with the mis-spelled word and report to The Herald office after 9 a. m., on the Monday following publication.

To the first 8 persons reporting the correct words after 9 a. m. on Monday (either by phone or in person) will be given a Guest Ticket good for any show (afternoon or evening) at the Lawler Theatre during that week.

No one employed by the Northfield Printing Company is eligible to these tickets and the time is set at 9 a. m. Monday to give our subscribers in neighboring towns the same advantage as our Northfield readers.

All that is necessary for you to do is carefully read the ads and when you find the six ads with a mis-spelled word—report to The Herald office after 9 a. m. on Monday, and to the first 8 people so reporting a Guest Ticket will be given. The mis-spelled word must be enclosed by parenthesis—as an illustration see the Mountain Garage adv. on page 3—in the eighth line down the word "see" is spelled "sea" and is in parenthesis (sea). There are six more ads in this issue with mis-spelled words in parenthesis—they may be in the large display ads or in the classified ad column—look for them and be one of the eight to receive a Guest Ticket this week. If you miss out this week, try again next week. No reports will be accepted at The Herald office until after 9 a. m. on the Monday following publication.

Pliny W. Burrows Sues For $10,000

Warren F. Manley of Brattleboro has been made a defendant in a law suit brought by Pliny W. Burrows of Vernon in the sum of $10,000. Burrows seeks to recover for losses sustained when cars driven by him and Manley were involved in an accident just south of the Vernon road to East Northfield June 7.

The papers were filed through the law offices of Carpenter and Clawson. Frank E. Barber has been retained as counsel for Manley.

It is alleged that Manley was driving his car at a speed in excess of 50 miles an hour, and that he was not driving in a careful manner.

The Burrows car, it is contended, was damaged so that it was valueless.

Mrs. Burrows, a passenger in the plaintiff's car, it is alleged was seriously injured in the accident, and it is claimed that some of the injuries are of a permanent nature.

Summer Residents Water System Fails

With the continued dry season, the failing of springs and lowering of water wells, many folks are becoming worried hereabouts as to their water supply. In many places water has to be carried now from existing sources. In the Highlands section of East Northfield where several of our summer residents have homes the water supply failed last week, the reservoir is empty and the well is dry. It was necessary to make a connection with the pipes of the East Northfield Water Company to provide water. This act was accomplished as a temporary arrangement with the kindly consideration of the Seminary authorities and the owners of the connecting line.

District No. 9 Picnic

The annual picnic of District No. 9 was held at the schoolhouse on Thursday, August 25, with about forty present including several from out of town.

After dinner under the trees, the usual business meeting with the election of officers took place.

Mrs. McNeil presented a beautiful bouquet of flowers to the eldest lady present which went to Mrs. Lucy Harvey of Greenfield. Following this a bouquet of pink roses was given to Mrs. Cora Preston a former teacher by Mr. Bert Johnson, Mrs. Preston being his first teacher. Those present from out of town included: Mrs. Pearl Minor and daughter, Mrs. Rhoda Lyman all of Springfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Bert H. Johnson of Hopkinton, Mass.; Mrs. Effie Chamberlain and 3 children, Mrs. Lucy J. Harvey, Mrs. Nellie H. Jones, all of Greenfield, Mass.

Mrs. Lena Lantz and two children of Keene, N. H.; Mrs. Maria A. Barrett of Hinsdale, N. H.; Allen Putnam of California.

The French King Bridge Dedication committee who have arranged the program of exercises for Saturday, September tenth.

A view looking up the Connecticut River at French King where the new bridge has been erected as part of the new Mohawk Trail "Erving-Gill" cut-off.

French King Dedication Arrangements Made

Thousands of persons from Franklin county and vicinity are expected to witness the elaborate parade and exercises and hear the speaking program headed by Gov. Ely at the official opening and dedication of the new French King bridge in Montague on Saturday afternoon, September 10th. The program will start at 2 o'clock, daylight time.

The speakers will open the exercises from a specially erected platform in the center of the new bridge, with the aid of loud speakers. Governor Ely, Commissioner of Highways Lyman, former State Treasurer Haigis and other notables will take part.

Following the speakers program, the parade of historical floats depicting the history of the old French King highway and the development of transportation since that time will start from the River road in Erving and traverse the entire eight miles of new highway.

The French King bridge is 740 feet in length and spans the Connecticut river 135 feet above the water. It represents about $1,000,000 of the $3,000,000 expenditure of the commonwealth on the entire project. The new highway is a link in the so-called Mohawk trail, starting in the town of Erving on the east and ending on High street, Greenfield, on the West.

In addition to the formal program, a river regatta and air carnival will enliven the occasion.

J. B. Kennedy of Greenfield is chairman of the General Committee. Mount Hermon is represented by R. L. Watson and Roy R. Hatch. Northfield by Charles E. Leach, Charles A. Parker, Charles S. Tenney and William F. Hoehn.

Bank Officers Elected Franklin Savings Inst.

At a special meeting of the Trustees of the Franklin Savings Institution held last Tuesday morning at Greenfield. Mr. Charles W. Nims for the past 19 years treasurer of the Franklin Savings Institution, was elected president of the bank and Mr. Clayton R. Bond, vice-president of the First National Bank and Trust company was chosen treasurer.

Mr. Nims succeeds the late Mr. Charles Allen and Mr. Bond succeeds to the office held by Mr. Nims.

Mr. Nims is widely known in banking circles of Massachusetts, and has been connected with the institution for 37 years entering the employ of the bank in February 1895.

He is a director of the First National Bank and Trust company.

Mr. Bond is a native of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and obtained his early banking training in the institutions of that place. In 1910, he went to California where he was associated with the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank. After his service in the United States navy during the World War, he returned to St. Johnsbury as cashier of the Merchants National bank and remained there until 1920 when he came to Greenfield to associate himself with the First National Bank and Trust Co.

The Franklin Savings Institution is one of the oldest and largest banks of its kind in this section of the state. It was incorporated on April 2, 1834 and on January first of this year had total resources of $14,162,490.33.

Glutney Home Damaged By Fire

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Glutney on Main street was considerably damaged by fire early Thursday morning. About two o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Glutney were awakened by the odor of smoke which began to fill the house. Hurriedly dressing, Mr. Glutney began an investigation and Mrs. Glutney aroused her neighbor to summon the fire department which with Chief Galen Stearns responded promptly. The origin of the fire was discovered to be about the northwest corner of the house in the basement where the electric wires enter and it had been smoldering for some time. A stream of water soon had the fire out but before it had considerably damaged the house and its entire contents. The loss has not been estimated. Insurance men and electrical inspectors looked over the situation late in the day.

"The fire department deserve credit for so successfully handling the fire and preventing unnecessary loss" said Mr. Glutney to a Herald representative.

Exhibition Match; Hotel Golf Course

Next Tuesday, September 6th, upon the golf grounds of the Northfield Hotel an exhibition match of golf will be played to which the public are cordially invited. There being no admission fee. Two teams will play and are considered evenly matched so that there will be no handicap and "best ball" will prevail. Two professions and two amateurs are in the play. The first team is composed of "Mac" Sennett, pro of Greenfield Country Club with Robert Duncan of Jamaica, N. Y., and the second team consists of "Al" Raymond pro of the Northfield links with Ralph Raymond of Boston as his mate. The game promises to be an interesting one.

Had Bad Fall

Mrs. Margaret Clement who is with Mrs. Rodgers at her home on Ashuelot Road had the misfortune to fall on the stairs yesterday and suffered a serious fracture. She was treated by Dr. Wright who reduced the fracture and removed her to the Franklin County Hospital where she is reported as resting comfortably.

Town Elevation

The state department of Public Works are to place two markers in each of the towns of the Commonwealth indicating the town's elevation above sea level. One was recently placed in Orange. How many citizens of Northfield know how high they are located above sea level?

"Are those twin babies?" asked the redcap.

"Yes," replied the woman, "they were born on election day. We named one Smith and the other Hoover."

"Well," said the redcap, "I guess I was holding Smith."

Bookkeeper: "How shall I book the amount with which the cashier absconded?"

Chief: "Put it down to 'Running Expenses'."

Baseball Games No. Leverett Here On Labor Day

There are only two more baseball games left to be played before the boys hang up their "spikes" and gloves for another year.

Tonight, Friday, the local team will entertain the Headquarters Co., team of Brattleboro. Both teams have one game to their credit.

Monday, Labor Day, at 2.30 p. m., North Leverett will send their representatives here. This game also will be the third of a series, as each team has taken one game.

Lets all turn out and show the fine old baseball spirit for which the fans of this town have made themselves a reputation. The visiting teams nearly all comment on the fine support given the players by the fans. Lets not fail in these last two games.

Time To Speak Out Against Extravagance Of County Commissioners

At last the people of Franklin County are beginning to realize that lavish expenditures have been made by our County Commissioners in the erection of the new County Court House and even now instead of rolling and seeding the lawn about the building a landscape gardener is employed and the entire lawn is being sodded all at the expense of the taxpayers of the County. Long ago we asked the question of "Who wanted this Court House." Surely the taxpayers never had the opportunity to declare themselves by vote—well in the Greenfield Recorder and Gazette of August 26th one citizen has declared his opinion in print which we quote.

Spending The County's Money To the editor of the Gazette-Recorder:

As the new Court House on Main street nears completion, there seems to be a strong feeling on the part of many of the county's taxpayers that there has been a much more lavish expenditure of money than was necessary for the erection of a building quite suitable for the county's needs and in keeping with local surroundings, and that many thousands, yes, tens of thousands of dollars could have been saved; and it does not appear to them that this lavish expenditure can be justified particularly under existing conditions.

A little pride in our local industries could have been shown which would have given employment to local mechanics and artisans; local brick and art stone might well have been used; and concrete curbs would have utilized local labor and obviated the necessity of purchasing granite, limestone and pressed brick.

It seems to me that every taxpayer in the county should make it a point to inspect the building carefully, see just what has been done, and decide whether or not he approves it. Before he enters, let him take note of the ornate features of the design, particularly the portico and entrance. These ornate features are not considered essential in modern architecture and they add greatly to building costs. Let him not overlook the lavish use of cut granite curbing, and the bronze entrance doors; having entered, let him go at once to the roof and note that it covered with an art tile that would do credit to the drawing room of a mansion and this on top of a regular mopped-on six or seven-ply roof. Let him pay no attention to the elaborate ventilating system, as this is required on all public buildings by state regulations.

Descend to the second floor and note the lavish use of polished marble wainscoting, the paneling of the ceilings and their varying heights; the innumerable small toilet rooms in addition to the large ones on each floor. Look over the main court room. Survey the library.

Descend again to the basement floor, where there is more of an air of simplicity and plainness, but still an over-supply of toilet facilities. Each one of these small toilet rooms elaborately wainscoted in polished marble. Go to the rear of the building and descend to the sub-basement, where are to be found not only the heating arrangements but barred cages, which I understand are for only the temporary detention of prisoners awaiting their cases to be called. Even these seem out of place; decidedly abnormal in any event.

Now ask yourself, has the county's money been wisely spent. WILLIAM M. PRATT, Greenfield

Greenfield Fair To Have Many Excep- tional Features

Greenfield Fair, which will present its 83rd annual show on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 13 and 14, with big night shows, Monday and Tuesday, September 12 and 13, will have all its old time attractions and many new and timely features. There will be two days of fast harness racing, two nights of brilliant fireworks, big vaudeville bills both day and evening, monster shows of purebred cattle, horses and poultry, two fine hall shows, adult and juvenile, and a big midway full of attractions that will delight and amuse.

On Wednesday, the final day of the show, there will be the annual athletic meet for the high schools in which the pick of the county's schoolboy athletes will strive for supremacy in track and field events. In the afternoon of that day there will be the children's big parade in which the 4-H clubs of the region will demonstrate their accomplishments in the form of floats and decorated cars. Also in the parade line will be the Blue Ribbon children of the Franklin County Health Association, with a special float bearing the King and Queen of Health, the boy and girl who have stood highest in health rating during the year.

Music during the fair will be supplied by the Greenfield Military band, which will be assisted on the second day of the fair by several high school bands. As many western Massachusetts fairs will not be held this year, the public can come to Greenfield and be sure of two days and nights of lively entertainment on the advertised dates.

Northfield citizens always take a keen interest in Greenfield's fair and are there in large numbers. They will be there again this year.

Organization Completed Franklin County Republican Council

The Franklin County Republican Council has about completed its work of organization and the President Hon. John W. Haigis of Greenfield and the secretary, Mrs. Gertrude T. Webber of East Northfield have issued the official list and roster of the working forces. Mr. Albert G. Moody of East Northfield is a member of the Executive Committee and Mr. William F. Hoehn of Northfield is a member of the Publicity Committee. This organization will be the active political working force of Republicans in Franklin County.

"In all things essential there must be unity,
In all things unessential there must be liberty,
In all things there must be charity."

Roger Burlingame, late 1st lieutenant in the 308th Machine Gun Battalion, A. E. F., in a brief but effective book addresses his fellow veterans of the World War.

He says:—"The American people in distress are capable of turning against its former heroes. In the last fourteen years a new generation has grown up. These people are growing angry, as they learn the facts against us veterans. They are beginning to suspect that most of us got a good deal of fun out of the war; that for most of us there was little suffering to be compensated."

They know that by 1945, $5,000 apiece will have been spent on veterans, according to the present laws. We can hardly expect them to cheer us as we pass in review. We cannot shut our ears to the word that is whispered and finally spoken aloud among them as we go by: the new word, the new, harsh word, "Racket."

This summary indictment is a severe one coming from within the ranks of veterans and we are sorry that such a conclusion was reached by the writer.

Massachusetts has a record breaking number of candidates who are seeking public office and expect the nomination of their party and its voters at the state primary election on Tuesday September 20th. The voters have a major task which is quite difficult. Voters of all parties should not be swayed by friendship or prejudice, but make their choice on the basis of merit. The present situation in government demands the services of the most able men.

Certainly our democratic form of government intended to give all men equal opportunity to participate in public affairs, but on the basis of public service rather than self-service. When men seek office not because of their desire to serve their constituents, but because they need the job, and its salary, it is not encouraging to good government. It would seem proper that men who are going to spend the taxpayers' money and direct their business have some redeeming qualifications.

In a stirring sermon at Laurel Park assembly Sunday morning, Bishop Adna W. Leonard of the Methodist Episcopal church, Pittsburg, Pa., commended the stand of President Hoover on prohibition. He declared that Hoover had not gone over to the Jeffersonian position of state's rights. "Hoover recognizes that there must be co-operation between the states and the federal government in the enforcement of prohibition. What Mr. Hoover is seeking to do is, to create public opinion that will compel the co-operation of states with the federal powers."

The Bishop has made a very fair and concise statement and an interpretation not hard to understand. It seems incredible that other "dry" advocates can not be as fair in their point of view.

There is nothing fundamentally involved about the silver problem. It is simply a question of common sense. Debasement of silver values has deprived half the world's population of a large part of its purchasing power. It has been an important factor in depressing foreign trade to the lowest level in many years, thus destroying the livelihood of hundreds of thousands of our citizens. It has so disturbed the monetary systems of the world that permanent economic recovery is all but impossible until the problem is solved.

As a matter of fact, there is not enough gold to keep the wheels of international business in motion, and what gold there is, is largely controlled by two countries, France and the United States. The way out is by the establishment—through international agreement—of a fair ratio between the values of gold and silver, thus furnishing us with two money metals instead of one. Both the major political parties have pledged themselves to that. A multitude of business leaders and business associations continue to point out the need for it. The time for definite action has come.

Seeking Members

A membership of several hundred thousand voters in Massachusetts is the objective of the National Economy League in its nationwide movement to combat waste and extravagance in all forms in municipal, state and federal governments, according to an announcement Thursday by Carl F. Demaree, chairman of the Massachusetts branch of the League. County headquarters will be established in Greenfield and a number of Northfield and Hermon people are interested in forming a chapter here.

Poet's Corner

A SLAVE GIRL OF OLD DEERFIELD

Two hundred years and more have passed
Since this story first was told,
Then greed was in the hearts of men,
Dark deeds, and love of gold.

Many a ship sailed o'er the seas,
With goods for foreign lands,
And many a Christian merchant-man,
Anchored by far off strands.

Twas such a ship that glided fast,
To the sheltered Congo bay,
Silently it hugged the shore,
That languid summer day.

The tropic sun shone hotly down
On a jungle village near,
The simple hearted tribesmen there
Had no enemies to fear.

Outside the village was a well
Where native children played,
Oh white men from a Christian land,
Will not your hands be stayed?

How can such thoughts dwell in your hearts?
You who have children dear,
Have you not heard a mother's grief?
Have you not seen her tears?

But greed for riches most prevails,
See who is coming near,
A maid of twelve brings down her gourd
To fill with water clear.

She stoops to dip it in the well,
She turns, but all too late,
Cruel thongs bind her fast,
She is hurried to her fate.

A princess in her sunny land,
Child of a Congo king,
Chained with other captive slaves,
In silent suffering.

Three years have passed, the negro
Is sold in Boston town,
A dark skinned baby clasps her breast,
A new home she has found.

For Parson Ashley of Deerfield
Has paid her master gold,
And takes her to his fair young wife,
To help with tasks so many fold.

Young mistress Ashley's heart was moved
With pity for the slave,
For pining her own sweet babe,
Had been placed in its grave.

Jinny Cole, as she was called,
Was faithful, honest, true,
To her loved mistress and her kin,
Her troubles now were few.

But still a wish to see that place
Of sun, where she was born,
Made her collect strange treasures bright
To take on her journey long.

Perhaps the heaven she heard described
In the New England meeting place,
Her mind, half savage, did confuse
With the fair land of her race.

Cato, her son to manhood grew,
The children loved him so
He'd dance, then whip his thin black legs
To make them faster go.

The shiny new stove was his foe,
It could not keep him warm.
Only old missie's big fireplace
Could thaw his shivering form.

Seventy years had come and gone,
And Jinny, the faithful slave
Served in the Ashley household,
Her whole affection gave.

Then death claimed aged Jinny Cole,
Less than a month passed by,
And her old mistress followed her
To a home beyond the sky.

And who would doubt that they abide
In the same mansion of the blest,
Though different far in race and hue,
Their friendship stood the test.

By Doris Hildreth Wheeler,
Winchester, N. H.

DIRGE FOR A SOLDIER

Close his eyes; his work is done!
What to him is friend or foe—
man,
Rise of moon, or set of sun,
Hand of man, or kiss of woman?
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

As man may, he fought his fight,
Proved his truth by his endeavor;
Let him sleep in solemn night,
Sleep forever and forever.
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

Fold him in his country's stars,
Roll the drum and fire the volley!
What to him are all our wars,
What but death bemocking folly?

Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

Leave him to God's watching eye,
Trust him to the hand that made him.
Mortal weeps idly by:
God alone has power to aid him.
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow!
What cares he? He cannot know.
Lay him low!

FOUR LEAF CLOVER

I know a place where the sun is like gold,
And the cherry blooms burst with snow,
And down underneath is the loveliest nook,
Where the four-leaf clovers grow.

One leaf is for hope, and one is for faith,
And one is for love, you know,
And God put another in for luck—
If you search, you will find where they grow.

But you must have hope, and you must have faith,
You must love and be strong—and so,
If you work, if you wait, you will find the place
Where the four-leaf clovers grow.

Lutheran Wedding-Hymns

Oh, blest the house, what'er befall,
Where Jesus Christ is all in all;
Yea, if He were not dwelling there,
How poor and void and dark it were!

Oh, blest the house where faith ye find,
And all within have set their mind
To trust their God and serve Him still
And do in all His holy will.

Blest such a house: it prospers well;
In peace and love the parents dwell,
And in their children's lot is shown
How richly God can bless His own.

Then here will I and mine today
A solemn covenant make and say,
Though all the world forsake Thy word,
I and my house will serve The Lord.
Amen.

Obituary

MRS. ELECTA R. STONE

Mrs. Electa R. Stone, widow of Calvin J. Stone, passed away very peacefully Thursday morning, August 25th at the age of 85 years, 9 months and 5 days in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bert A. Willey on Winchester Road, East Northfield, where she had been since she fell and fractured her hip July 19th at the home of her son, Mr. William M. Stone of South Vernon where she had lived for the past 3 years. Mrs. Stone was born in Vernon, November 20th, 1846, the daughter of Thomas and Roseanna (Clark) Alexander.

She married Calvin Stone February 25th, 1867. Most of her married life was spent in Vernon. She leaves six children, Mrs. Hattie S. Johnson of Fair Haven, Vt.; William M. Stone of South Vernon; Mrs. Ada M. Shine of Concord, N. H.; Mrs. Anna M. Willey of East Northfield; Mrs. Mabel I. Dodge of Shelburne Falls, and Mr. Fred E. Stone of Northfield. She also leaves twelve grandchildren and eight great grandchildren, also nieces and nephews.

She was a fine Christian woman and a devoted wife and mother, a kind friend and neighbor. The funeral was held last Saturday afternoon at the Advent Christian Church of South Vernon.

The services were conducted by Rev. George E. Tyler and attended by townspeople, friends and relatives from out of town. The bearers were her two sons William and Fred Stone, Warren Shine and Bert Willey. There were many beautiful flowers. A piece of eighty-five gladioli from her children covered the casket. Burial was in the family lot in Tyler cemetery.

Home Loan Banks

Congressman Allen T. Treadway of the First Massachusetts District is receiving daily many inquiries as to the manner in which the Home Loan Bank Board will function. Many of these inquiries are from persons who wish to obtain loans on their property. Mr. Treadway recently referred one of these communications to the Hon. Franklin W. Fort, Chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board, and Chairman Fort's reply was so clear and explicit that Mr. Treadway has decided to make it public for the benefit of all who may be interested. The body of Mr. Fort's letter follows:

"This Board, under the law as passed by Congress, has no power to make loans. Its duty is to set up a group of Home Loan Banks in various parts of the country, which banks in turn are to make loans to building and loan associations, insurance companies and savings banks in order to place them in a position to make loans direct to the owners of property. The Banks which we will set up will have power to loan direct to property owners only in the event that the value of the property justifies the loan desired and that none of the usual lending institutions will make the loan. It is our hope and belief—as Congress believed when it passed the law—that the institutions which are eligible to borrow from us will be very glad to take care of all good mortgage applications after the Regional Banks have been established.

"These Banks we hope to have in operation by the middle of October at the latest. As soon as the one for the district in which you live is established we will forward your letter to it. You will appreciate that a nation-wide system of this sort can not be set up instantaneously but we are making every possible effort to do it as speedily as we realize how urgent the need is."

Just "greasing" isn't enough. We must lubricate every moving part thoroughly and correctly. The Morgan Garage.—Adv.

A Woman's Memorial To Her Loneliness

A memorial which is unique in its spirit of commemoration and novel in design is being completed at the foot of the Gulf road, Warwick to Winchester, within stepping distance of the old cellar hole which formerly supported the modest home of Zilpha Smith, an eccentric character of Warwick for many years. It is an out-door fireplace which is being constructed by the state forestry department and which will serve those who would stop by the wayside for a respite and a repast in the open. On a bronze plaque attached to the stone background of the fireplace is an inscription indicating the significance of the location as character of a generation ago. It relates to Warwick's unusual Monuments have been erected to commemorate the deeds of warriors, of statesmen, of industrial leaders and others who have performed meritorious service but probably this is the only instance in these United States where recognition has been made of a person who was such a lonely soul that she shunned society and lived a life so unusual that one ponders at the obsessions which governed her mind. This tablet on the Mt. Grace forest reservation may rightfully serve as a memorial to home devotion for this odd character showed an attachment to filial associations and home environment that exemplified this trait in New England heritage to an unusual degree.

Zilpha Smith was the daughter of Levi and Lydia Smith, born in the little unpainted house which stood in close proximity to the road about a mile north of Warwick village, and skirted in the rear by a babbling brook which goes babbling on though the old house is gone and the family of this particular Smith has run out. The story goes that Zilpha, a normal child and even as you and I, became enamored of a young man. A romance developed which blossomed into love while she was still in her teens. The birds never sang so sweetly about this sheltered little home nor did the glistening waters in the nearby brook ever play more delightful symphonies than it did while this courtship was proceeding. But as the hope chest was nearing completion, the reveries which had quickened the heartstrings of Zilpha were silenced. Perhaps a fairer maiden with charms more alluring than Zilpha's had crossed the path of her youthful admirer but whatever the cause, the courtship came to an abrupt end. The little girl in the little house down in the Gulf found that the world of sunshine through which she had been passing could be as drab and as disappointing as it had been beautiful. She brooded over the sad end of her first and only love affair. Her affection was too sincere and her devotion too deep to make it possible for her to throw off the adversity which came into her life and most of the time she spent by herself. Eventually she lived within a world of her own, shunning people to the extent that it was only occasionally one caught a glimpse of her. Her parents died as the years went on but that fact did not change her manner of living nor her complex to avoid people.

She braided palm leaf hats as a means of livelihood and every so often after nightfall, she would walk to the general store of Nathan Goddard in North Orange to exchange her hats for provisions and to obtain additional palm leaves. James Stockwell, a neighbor and member of the Warwick selectmen and "Aunt" Maria Stevens were the only ones fortunate enough to occasionally get a word from her and they were the only ones from whom she would accept food. Others would leave tasty morsels outside her home but it would remain untouched. If she were out-of-doors and she saw someone approaching she would hasten to a place of hiding until the "danger" passed. Probably no one ever gained admittance to her home in the years she lived there alone. Another tragedy came into her life one night when the old house burned to the ground. Even then she asked for no help or sympathy and her determination to remain at the old homestead did not wane. Removing boards from the nearby barn, she placed them over the cellar hole and with these as a roof continued to live there. Later when the rigors of winter made conditions impossible, she fixed one corner of the barn so that it was habitable and went there to "carry on." With the approach of old age, the authorities felt called upon to care for her and reluctantly she left the premises to reside with "Aunt" Maria Stevens in the little red Stevens home. Later she was taken "over the hill to the poor farm," where she died, February 3, 1885, at the age of 70.

Out of the old cellar hole now grow sturdy trees and the rank foliage covers the intervening spaces. To the outside world, the cellar hole has been just another relic of where once stood a dwelling. The bright romance of Zilpha Smith the devotion which was hers for the little home on the gulf and the tragedy which clouded the closing years of her life, have long since been obliterated by nature's hand but the fireplace near the rippling brook which goes singing on its way, reached by stepping stones, leading from a grassy plot at one side of the old cellar hole, shaded by a sturdy butternut, maples and oaks, provides a reminder of other days and offers a silent tribute to a life of devotion and consecration. A Clear Statement Of The Bonus Marchers

Much has been said and written concerning the manner and the cause of which the so-called bonus marchers were dislodged from their improvised places of habitation on Government property in the Capital of the Nation.

It is a well known fact that the Federal Government has in progress large building operations extending from Fifteenth Street near the White House to the Capitol along the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue; also similar operations on the north side of Pennsylvania Avenue from Fourth Street to the Capitol and on ground south of the Mall near the Agriculture Department area. Nearly all the buildings on these areas had been razed and others partly demolished when, in squat-like fashion, the bonus seekers gradually took possession in the number about 2,500.

Here they lived as best they could in huts, tents and the partly demolished buildings on low ground in the center of the old part of the city, with bad hygienic conditions which daily threatened the outbreak of contagious diseases. Except for the extreme radicals in whose ranks it was stated were not many ex-veterans, the bonus marchers conducted themselves with decorum. Right of appeal, free speech and assembly were accorded them and all others within the limits of the city's regulatory provisions governing such rights. These regulatory provisions are similar to those exercised by most municipalities and are not regarded in derogation of the Bill of Rights. Fair play, respectful consideration, forbearance and sympathy were shown the bonus marchers by the local civil authorities. Members of Congress and the citizens of Washington.

Congress having adjourned without making the desired bonus appropriations, the hygienic conditions growing worse in Washington's hottest weather and the building program having been long delayed by the presence of the marchers on the ground to be improved, persuasive steps were taken to get possession by the Treasury Department so that the improvement might be resumed.

It was stated authoritatively that a plan was finally agreed upon, after nearly two weeks' effort, whereby the bonus marchers were to yield possession to the Treasury Department at the rate of not less than 200 per day, but on July 28, in carrying out this understanding, the metropolitan police force met with violent resistance on the part of some irremediables who refused to vacate on any terms submitted.

Conditions grew more ominous. Two riots broke out within a few hours of each other in which two bonus marchers were fatally injured and several persons were sent to the hospitals for treatment for bodily injuries. Finding that the police department was unable to cope with the situation without endangering the lives of innocent bystanders, as well as the veteran bonus marchers, policemen and the actual inciters of the riot, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia informed the President about noon of the day of July 28, that it would be impossible for the police department to maintain law and order except by free use of firearms which would make the situation a dangerous one. It was believed, however, the Commissioners continued, that the presence of federal troops in some number would obviate the seriousness of the situation and result in far less violence and bloodshed.

Acting at once on this advice from the Commissioners, the President made a statement in which he recited the incidents covering the occupation of the building site by the bonus marchers; the provisions of Congress for their return home, and his request of the Department of Justice to investigate the whole incident and to cooperate with the District authorities. Concluding, he said: "In order to put an end to this rioting and defiance of civil authority, I have asked the Army to assist the District authorities to restore order."

On the afternoon of July 28, Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War issued orders to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Chief of the Staff, U. S. Army, to cooperate with the District of Columbia police force in clearing the affected area, turn over all prisoners to the civil authorities and accord the women and children every consideration and kindness.

The dispersion of the veterans from their billets on Pennsylvania Avenue and elsewhere within the District of Columbia by the Army gave rise to many different opinions. Some of the conservative veteran leaders themselves admitted, it was said, that the communist and radical elements had gotten beyond their control. Other conservatives, while admitting the seriousness of the situation caused by those who resisted their plan to vacate the areas for improvement purposes, were sure that they would have, with the aid of the police, cleared up the situation without the aid of the Army.

Some of those who were studying the situation during the rioting as disinterested spectators disagreed with this opinion, stating that the melee looked to them as if no one knew "who was who" among the veterans and without there seemed to be no evidence of any of them cooperating with the police in quieting the radicals and the communists, though there might have been.

Town Appropriations Can Not Be Cut After Tax Rate Fixed

The citizens of a town in Western Massachusetts have had a change of heart since voting their appropriations at the annual meeting and realizing that the tax rate as announced by the assessors is too large, sought through the medium of a special town meeting to reduce the appropriations. Evidently such action could not be legal according to a pronouncement from Theodore N. Waddell, state director of accounts. A copy of the warrant was submitted to Mr. Waddell and his reply indicates the town has no right to vote a reduction in appropriations after the tax levy is made and the tax rate decided on.

The letter, in part, is as follows: "Your tax levy having been fixed and all the appropriations made as required by law, it (the town-meeting warrant) now proposes to change these appropriations, presumably without any knowledge of the needs of the different departments or the contracts entered into by the officials of those departments, and this, it seems to me, is beyond the power of the community, unless you were to invalidate all of the tax levy, and if this were done I hardly know where the town would be."

Hoover Will Carry State Of Massachusetts

President Hoover is absolutely sure of carrying Massachusetts, declared Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican state committee after returning from conferences with party leaders in Berkshire, Hampshire and Hampden counties. He reported unison there and better party registration than in either of the two preceding national elections, and declared that the sentiment for Hoover is gaining.

Taylor also reported that the district councils are proving their worth. He said he found no Republican deserting Hoover because of his call for a change in the 18th amendment.

as they would have continued to remain in Washington where they would create riotous situations.

Many others claimed that whatever the varying opinions were however good the intentions of most of them were in remaining here, it came to pass that because of their actual presence, rioting on Pennsylvania Avenue assumed that situation of violence which, the President declared, "no government could tolerate." It was held by those who reasoned thus that the riotous condition on Pennsylvania Avenue was a fact and not a theory, that customarily such violence is quelled by arrests and the use of other civil force and since the local police organization was unable to cope with the situation it was the duty of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to appeal to the President for the assistance of the Army, the same as county or municipal authorities appeal to their governors for troops when their constabulary or police are unable to handle like situations in the states. Some of those who took this position reasoned that order had to be restored and maintained and that if the police had had the numbers they would have used force and in doing so would probably not have performed their duties as well as the Army did. Furthermore, it was claimed that since Washington is the Federal city set apart as such, the Army is essentially a reserve police force in cases of emergency.

Answering the criticism and charges that grew out of the orders of the President, Secretary of War Hurley stated, among other things, that with a force of about 600 men order was restored without firing a single shot.

He denied that the billets of the marchers were fired by troops and said that, for the most part, the improvised huts, including the tents which belonged to the District of Columbia National Guard, were fired by the retreating radicals. The Secretary of War also denied that women and children were driven out by troops; that on the contrary the building occupied by them was protected and that the Red Cross immediately announced responsibility for them, including husbands or fathers accompanying them.

That the bonus question, in these hard times, had its human appeal was the sense of many of our citizens, though they did not favor it. To behold the ragged, tattered and bedraggled men, women and children on the streets or in their tents or houses made of tin or old boxes was to become aroused, they claimed, to the dire conditions which prevail in every section of this country and which must stimulate every good citizen to do all that he can to correct the causes.

It is rather a strong statement to make that the bonus marchers were driven out of Washington at the point of bayonets of the regular Army, but it is a fact. Had they not retired there would have been bloodshed in proportion to the resistance. It appears to have come to pass that law and order would either have to surrender to a mob or the mob to law and order.

That the bonus marchers left was to their credit and not an evidence of cowardice, nor was it an evidence of a kind of expediency that "he who runs may live to fight another day," but rather an evidence that the great majority of the veterans although misled, did not come to Washington as an armed body of invaders but as citizens seeking what they regarded as justice, and seeking it in the way Anglo-Saxon civilization has found best and has worked into its organic laws—the right of petition, the right of assembly, the right of free speech and free press.—S. R. News Bureau.

Another Monument Atop Mohawk Trail

A large bronze Indian is to be placed atop the Mohawk Trail and dedicated October first by the Improved Order of Red Men.

The memorial, a bronze statue of a Mohawk Indian sculptured by Joseph Polla of New York city will be erected at a cost of $1,000 subscribed by Red Men and affiliated orders, including the Daughters of Pocahontas, from all New England.

The inscription to be placed on the tablet on the boulder supporting the Mohawk Indian memorial will read as follows:—"Hail to the Sunrise! In memory of the Mohawk Indian. The Mohawk of the five nations began to settle in New York state in 1630 and for 90 Great Suns they fought the New England tribes. The New Mohawks that traveled this trail were friendly to the white settlers. Erected by the tribes and councils of the Improved Order of Red Men Oct. 1, 1932."

Sam Higginbottom Spoke Over Radio

Many Northfield people listened in to the address over W.G.Y., last Friday August 26th when Sam Higginbottom, well known here and a former Hermon graduate gave a thrilling story of his experience in the Far Forum.

Dr. Sam Higginbottom is president of the Allahabad Agricultural Institute of India and is in the United States on a furlough.

Dr. Higginbottom went to India as a Christian evangelist and found that he would be best perform his mission by taking up the work of agricultural evangelist. His greatest work has been in teaching the impoverished native to grow twenty bushels of wheat where ten grew before. He built up the Allahabad Institute, lately combined with the Ewing Christian college, to make the University of Allahabad, until it has become one of the most constructive agencies engaged in the upbuilding of rural life in India. He speaks of Indian agriculture with an authority and intelligence surpassed by no other man.

Free Haircuts By Orange Barbers

Seven barbers of Orange will donate their artistry for the purpose of enabling the children of unemployed parents to present a neat appearance at the opening of fall term of the public schools.

To prevent imposition by persons who can afford to pay for such service, the barbers ask that a note signed by the parents be sent with each child.

About 150 haircuts were donated by the shops last summer during a similar effort to assist unemployed. At that time both children and adults received the benefit of the barbers' labor.

B. & M. Revenues

The Boston & Maine railroad for July showed a deficit of $94,836.63 after fixed charges in a month in which revenues showed a reduction of $1,463,996.52 as compared with July, 1931. The figures indicate, however, that in the first seven months of this year, the Boston & Maine earned a net income of $184,110.20 over and above its fixed charges for that period. In July last year, the Boston & Maine had a net income of $423,040.98.

Operating expenses were reduced by $863,170.60 during the month, as compared with July, last year.

The decline in revenues showed $983,797.35 (or 31.6%) in freight and $380,301.30 (or 34.1%) in passenger revenues, as compared with July, 1931.

Another Coolidge Yarn

Some Concord women just back from Plymouth, Vt., bring with them another Coolidge story.

It seems the tourists who stop at the little village high in the Vermont hills are no fewer than they have been most of the time since that famous oath of office taken by the light of a kerosene lamp. Recently a large group of women came by bus, disembarked in front of the old homestead, and hustled up the walk to go through the house. A man sitting on the side veranda interrupted them as they reached the steps with the declaration: "I don't think they'll let you in."

The delegation retreated towards the old church across the road, encountered a native, and asked who the man on the porch was, explaining he had said they could not enter the house. "Well, he ought to know," the native replied. "That's Calvin Coolidge."—(The Concord, N. H. Monitor).

The Orange Tax Rate

Thirty-six dollars per $1,000 of valuation was announced as the final tax rate for 1932 by the board of assessors of Orange after nearly three days spent in revision of the levy to include $11,650 appropriated for welfare purposes at a special town meeting.

The revision was made at the request of the meeting in accordance with a strict adherence to a "pay-as-you-go" policy advocated at that time. The new rate is $2 greater than the rate originally announced by the board Aug. 10 and an increase of $4 over the 1931 rate.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

Owing to a recent ruling of the Post Office Department it is very necessary that all changes of addresses should be reported direct to the Herald Office rather than to leave it to the Post Office. This ruling says that if the Post Office is notified and they in turn have to notify the Publisher it will cost the paper 2 cents for each change reported. So please let us know direct when you move so we can send your copy to the right address.

The Listening Post

By Henry R. Grogan
Economist

Going Up!!

Advertising specialists know that newspaper ads are news. They are read with eager interest by American housewives on their eternal quests for bargains. Ask any New England woman as she walks along with her market basket about the price of eggs, bananas, or roast beef, and she'll tell you right off the bat. And she has noticed that her dollars aren't going quite as far lately as they used to go, and she is hurrying to stock up with her future needs. Well, the Department of Labor, this week confirmed her observations and announced that its price index had risen one per cent in July over June. The index was based on a 1926 level and covered 785 products. And if that doesn't send the head buyer in the family down to the grocer's, butcher's, and candlestick maker's in a hurry, I don't know what will, for it is evident that the price level will begin a slow, but nevertheless certain rise.

Pulverizing the Atom
If you ever had a shock from your house current you know what 110 volts will do to your constitution. But, 5,000,000 volts! That's something again. German scientists, while the rest of us have been concerned with nothing more exciting than breaking our morning eggs, have actually taken 5,000,000 volts and pulverized the atom into millions of tiny particles. Huge X-ray tubes did the trick, cables report, and another triumph of brain over matter astounded the world. The human mind surely seems invincible and what it can eventually accomplish in the field of economics as well as science only time can tell. But it certainly looks encouraging for economists.

Talking Taxes
Industrialized Cambridge, Mass., home of higher learning, reports its tax rate as three to four dollars higher than last year's high rate. Assessments, it is learned, remain the same in the face of shrinking land values which have in some cases declined as much as fifty per cent. Cambridge citizens therefore are paying double what they actually should pay in taxes. The situation is common in New England. Hundreds of jobless watch helplessly as entire factories shut off their power, ship their machinery and head to less expensive parts. Cities shrink as office buildings, lofts and stores stand idle as rent payers revolt against continued high taxes, finding that they cannot afford to pay the rents. Cutting municipal costs is more than just talk now; it is an urgent economic necessity. Assessments must be lowered in line with actual valuations. Otherwise our cities are doomed. Cutting taxes will speed up recovery.

Valuation Reduced Of Hydro-Elec. Co.

The value of the Bellows Falls Hydro-Electric corporation in the town of Rockingham for the purpose of taxation was placed at $6,000,000 in a supreme court order made public Friday in Montpelier ending litigation that has been in the courts for more than a year. The supreme court order reduced the original appraisal made by the board of listers of the village of Bellows Falls from $8,484,500 and the valuation of $6,798,789 made by a tax appeal board.

Leyden Observes Old Home Day

Leyden observed Old Home Day last Thursday with friends present from Greenfield, Bernardston, Douglas, Colrain, Winchendon, Shelburne and Brattleboro, Vt.

A large crowd gathered, filling the hall to its capacity. Rev. Eliasha Hooper gave the address and Rev. Lawrence Begarie and Mr. Stotz and Fred Dole spoke. Mrs. Otto Nau was very entertaining with her readings. Music was furnished by Schmidt's orchestra of Greenfield.

Visits Northfield; Calls At Herald Office Candidate Co. Comm.

Mr. Henry D. Wright, who is a candidate for County Commissioner visited friends in Northfield this week and called at the Herald office. The Editor had the opportunity of talking with Mr. Wright and through a short conference was assured that his experience fully qualified him for the responsibility which he hopes to assume. His political life extends over a period of many years. He has been town moderator over 30 years, assessor over 30 years, Rowe town clerk for several years, Chairman Board of Selectmen and member for over 10 years and Representative from first Franklin District for three terms.

Mr. Wright stated emphatically that he "believed in the principles of economy and in conserving the taxpayers' money and that if elected he would endeavor to do his best in representing the entire interests of the county."

Mr. Wright has a pleasing personality, and is approachable. He is a farmer. Was educated in our public schools and Deerfield academy. We feel that if elected he will make a competent official.

Living Beyond Means

Even knights of the road are living beyond their means, in the opinion of an Orange restaurant who was asked for a hand-out last week by a man, woman and child, who drove up in front of his place of business in an automobile. While the car was not a Pierce-Arrow or a Rolls-Royce, it was not a piece of junk by any manner of means. The occupants insisted they were very hungry, were without funds but after they had proceeded on their way, it was apparent that they were not out of gasoline.

Items Of Interest

The Greenfield Tap and Die corporation Tuesday afternoon announced to employees a 10 per cent reduction in wages. Like a cut of similar extent made a few months ago, it applies to everyone from the president down. The management regards the present reduction as temporary.

The Brattleboro selectmen will ask the Vermont public service commission to investigate the rates charged by the Twin State Gas & Electric company for gas, light and heat. They said they thought the rates were exorbitant.

Mr. Howard C. Rice editor and publisher of the Brattleboro Daily Reformer will have his name placed on the ballot as representative to the Vermont legislature from the Brattleboro district.

The school board of Orange are striving to effect economies and voluntary reductions in the salaries of teachers and employees are in order from five to ten per cent.

Richard J. Doolin, acting postmaster at Monroe Bridge, Franklin county, was appointed postmaster as successor to Victor S. Armino.

United States postage stamps were printed by a private firm until 1894, when the work was transferred to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The West Springfield tax rate for the present year was set at $33.60 on $1,000 as the board of assessors completed the tabulation and adding of figures. The 1931 rate was $30 and an increase of nearly $4 had been predicted as the result of appropriations made at the special town-meeting.

A deficit of $264,714 for the quarter ended June 30 is reported by the Central Vermont railway, against a deficit of $230,681 in the 1931 period. The deficit for the half-year to June 30 was $536,676 compared with $279,293 a year ago.

Murphy: "What's that in your pocket?"

Pat (in whisper): "Dynamite. I'm waiting for Casey. Every time he meets me he slaps me on the chest and breaks me pipe. Next time he does it, he'll blow his hand off."

Rub: "So she refused to marry you. Didn't you tell her about your rich uncle?"

Dub: "Yeah, I told her, and she's my aunt now."

Lincoln was remonstrating with General McClellan about the latter's military policy. During the talk McClellan became angry and said: "Sir, do you think I'm a fool?" "Why, no," returned Lincoln. Then with a dry smile he added: "Of course I may be mistaken."

Justice Raoul Henri Beaudreau has been assigned as the presiding justice at the November sitting of the Franklin superior court. The session will probably be the first in the new county courthouse.

The new barn being erected by Charles Tenney to take the place of the one which was destroyed by fire on his farm on the Meadows a short time ago is now well under way. The walls are partly up and one silo is well under way. Fourteen men are at work on the construction.

The lawn party and cafeteria supper of the North Church for the benefit of the improvement fund will be held today (Friday) on the lawn of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Wright. It is expected that a large number of people will attend the affair.

A most entertaining musical program was rendered in the concert of the Lotus Quartette at the Northfield Hotel last Saturday evening. A good sized audience gathered to enjoy it.

Wednesday Sept. 14th is Registration Day for Northfield Seminary and over six hundred students will come to begin their yearly studies in preparation for life's work.

Mount Hermon School will open its doors on Saturday, September 10th to the new incoming students.

Several residents of Northfield are to participate in the French King Bridge dedication parade. Mr. Charles A. Parker is furnishing one of his trucks for a float.

Northfield members of the Woman's Relief Corps will attend the meeting of the Franklin County association of W. R. C. to be held at Millers Falls, Wednesday, Sept. 7.

The Community Club dances which were discontinued during summer, will be renewed Sept. 17 when the first dance will be held.

The Masonic year will begin in September. The first event will be the opening meeting of Harmony lodge which will take place on Sept. 14. The Order of Eastern Star will hold its first meeting on Sept. 21.

Fair Tickets

Reported Sold

The Franklin county agricultural society's pre-ticket sale unofficially closed Monday evening when the various team captains met at the offices of the society to give their final report.

The trotters captained by Whitman Wells, reported a sale of 962 tickets, with the Pacers, captained by Steve Dole, a total of 516. There are eight men to report on team five of the trotters and about 39 more of the pacers to report. It is expected that the total sales this year will reach about 1800.

Modern Jelly Making

At this time of the year home-makers are getting out their preserving kettle, their jelly bag, and are wielding the jelly spoon. Every family likes jelly at least once a day, if not three times a day. The Americans are noted for their fondness for sweets and one of the ways of getting these sweets is in the form of jelly.

Sometimes hours are spent in a hot kitchen over the jelly kettle with disastrous results. The jelly does not become firm; it is not clear in color; and the homemaker is at a loss to know what to do. There are certain things to be considered in making good jelly. They may be summed up as follows:

Work with only a small amount of juice at one time, as large amounts of juice are much more difficult to handle satisfactorily.

Use a powdered citrus fruit pectin to supply the necessary jelling substance which may be lacking in the fruit which is being used for jelly.

And by using a flannel jelly bag to strain the juices, a nice, clear jelly will result.

In cooking the jelly, cook it until the juice "sheets" on the spoon, then pour into jelly glass. While still hot cover with a layer of hot paraffin.

Right now the homemaker could be making peach jelly, or a combination of peach and pear jelly. Other combinations such as apple and peach or pear and apple are also delicious. A blend of different juices will produce an unusual jelly which will please not only your guests but your family as well.

Then of course, there is the old standby grape jelly. This year there is a bountiful crop of grapes which should be made into jelly. There is nothing that will give more satisfaction to the homemaker at the close of the preserving season than many rows of filled jelly glasses, and the greater variety the greater satisfaction created. It pays to stop at this time of year and look forward to the coming winter months when these jellies are going to taste pretty good on hot biscuits, hot toast, or waffles. Information and recipes on modern jelly making are available on request.

The International Canning Contest is offering splendid prizes again this year for the best entries in several classes: vegetables, fruits, meats, pickles, unusual packs, balanced meal cans, jams and jellies. Two thousand prizes with more than $5,000 in cash and merchandise will be awarded. The contest is open to anyone. Full particulars may be had by writing Mrs. Grace Viall Gray, Log Cabin, Aurora, Illinois.

Harry A. Wells
Makes Statement
Of His Candidacy

The columns of The Herald are open to each and every candidate for public office to be voted for by the citizens of Northfield to make a statement to the public regarding their candidacy and this week the Editor is privileged to present the statement of Mr. Harry A. Wells of South Deerfield a candidate for representative from the first Franklin District.

"In this time of public and private difficulty I believe it is of the utmost importance that the right men should be elected; men of integrity and experience and proven ability, who will further the welfare of their constituencies and work with conservative and constructive effort to that end. That this may be so I believe every voter has a right to be fully informed.

I was born in Deerfield and have lived there all my life. A progressive farmer, always interested in working for the advancement of agriculture and betterment of rural living conditions. A grower of tobacco, dairyman and general farmer.

I have always taken an active part in the town's public affairs. I have been water commissioner for 18 years, having helped in establishing the Deerfield fire and water district of the town. For many years I was an active member of the finance committee and for six years I was selectman, serving as chairman for four years during which time many changes were made.

Among them was the new state road bringing problems requiring constant thought and time. During my entire term of service, my time was at the call of every citizen and my efforts were consistently for the betterment of the town and the benefit of its taxpayers.

I believe that my training and experience in town affairs, my intimate knowledge of the affairs of this district, my work and interest for years in the welfare of its agriculture, will enable me to be of use as your representative. It shall be my earnest effort to act as consistently for you in the state if nominated as I have in my town.

I believe in the reduction of taxes. I believe in the strictest economy in national, state, county and town affairs. I believe in the elimination of all useless expenditures or cutting out of unnecessary departments, notably those whose work overlaps the work of others. I believe in the adoption of a pay as you go policy and if nominated at the primaries, Sept. 20, will do all I possibly can toward effecting the things I believe in." (Signed) Harry A. Wells

Jersey Breeders

The Franklin County Jersey Breeders' association met on Wednesday of last week for its annual summer outing at the Leroy York farm in Colrain, where a most enjoyable and profitable program was carried out with morning and afternoon sessions. The outing assembled at 11 and inspected the farm and herd. A basket lunch at 12:30 was followed by a judging contest in charge of A. C. Burnham. Herbert Rhiner led a discussion on "Better Methods of Marketing Jersey Milk" and Mason Garfield related his experience. J. C. Cort of the state department of agriculture spoke on "A New Deal for the Massachusetts Dairymen."

Postmasters To Meet
Soon At Springfield

The 32nd Annual Convention of the National Association of Postmasters, will be held at the Municipal Auditorium, Springfield, Mass., Sept. 14-17. Mr. George D. Roe, President of New England Postmasters' Association and Postmaster at Westfield is the Host Postmaster.

Mr. Charles H. Slocumb, Postmaster of Greenfield is President of Massachusetts Postmasters' Association, Mr. Merritt C. Skilton, Postmaster of East Northfield is Secretary and Treasurer of the State Organization.

The three organizations, mentioned above all are meeting at Springfield and cooperating in the programs and in entertaining Postmasters from all over the United States. They are expecting 1,000 Postmasters as a minimum number in attendance.

The distinguished officials from the Post Office Department, will include the Postmaster General, the First, Second and Fourth Assistants, the chief Inspector, the superintendent of Post Office Service, the Superintendent of Postmasters' Appointments, the Director of Parcel Post, and several inspectors from Boston. Also two officials from the United States Treasury Department. Watch the Springfield papers a few days previous to the Convention for further details.

Wet And Dry
Signs On Cars

In Trenton, N. J., policemen acting on orders of Chief William P. Walters, served warning last week that all local motorists whose cars carried plates advocating repeal of enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment that they would have to take the signs off or they would be arrested. No arrests were made, but the policemen's orders are to note the license numbers of the cars bearing such signs and to arrest the drivers unless the signs are removed. This action is being followed by a similar attitude on the part of the other municipalities and would be a good thing for Massachusetts to do.

Sheep Dogs Day
At Springfield Fair

Championship sheep dogs and their owners from every section of New England will endeavor to annex further championship honors in the sheep dog contests at the Eastern States Exposition on Friday afternoon, September 23, when their owners will put the dogs through their paces in the Coliseum arena as a climax to the week's livestock program. Sheep judging will be concluded on Thursday, September 22, with a sale of purebred rams and ewes on Friday under the auspices of the New England Sheep and Wool Growers Association and the Exposition management, but it will remain for the shepherds and their dogs to officially close the big show's livestock events.

So far nine owners have entered their animals for the competitive trials. The final line-up will present some of the most famous sheep dogs in the United States, many have blood strains that trace back to the heaths and moors of Scotland and England.

Wednesday's Game; Northfield Defeats Greenfield Athletics

The baseball fans who attended Wednesday night's game with the Greenfield Athletics, were treated to a game full of baseball and arguments.

The locals won officially 9-0 on a forfeit, although the box score read 7-7 when the visitors refused to play further on account of darkness.

In the beginning of the sixth inning with the score tied at 7 all, Umpire Dalton called for one more inning.

Alex, the first batter in the last inning struck out, Holley was out on a high foul to Williams, L. Rose got on due to an error at short stop. Looney then fled out to Bolton in right field.

Joe Kersavage, the first batter for the locals, got a clean single, Urganiewicz got a free ticket. With Bolton at bat, Joe stole third base and Paul went to second. At this point, Hughes, the visiting catcher walked off the field and refused to play any more, saying it was too dark. The remainder of the Greenfield team came straggling in from the field. Umpire Dalton called for them to play ball. After a few minutes when they did not resume their positions, he forfeited the game to the local team.

Everyone realized it was plenty dark enough to play ball, but it was practically no darker for the visitors than it was, not over five minutes before, for the Northfield boys, so it seemed to the fans as though the visitors did not show a very high quality of sporting blood by refusing to play. As there was no one out at the time, and a runner on third and second, it surely wouldn't have taken very long to either score a run or else get the necessary put outs, which would have either won the game for Northfield or it would have ended a tie.

Taber Polhemus starred in the field for the locals by spearing a liner off the bat of Bernard Alex. Shearer pitched superbly, and struck out 8 of the 18 batters to face him.

Last Friday's Game Fort Dummer Wins

Fort Dummer of Brattleboro defeated Northfield on the Northfield diamond last Friday afternoon 3 to 2 in a seven inning game. All the visitors' runs came in the third inning on a combination of a triple by Ryan, a single by A. Nadeau and two errors by Northfield players.

Northfield rallied in the seventh to score twice and the inning ended with the winning runs left on the bases.

Bistrick pitched the first three innings for Northfield, and all the visitors' hits were made off his delivery. Urganiewicz who was delayed in reaching the game, went in at the beginning of the fourth inning, and showed such rare form that not a man from the Vermont town reached first during the four innings he pitched. Northfield Wins From Montague Wednesday

Northfield won the play-off game with the Montague Machine Co., team last Wednesday night by the score of 6-5. It was a six inning contest and was played before a small but ardent crowd of fans. The sportsman's shop of the visiting team was displayed when after five innings of good baseball and with the score tied, Umpire Dalton started to call the game on account of darkness. The visitors suggested another inning to see if one side or the other couldn't work a run across the plate so that one team could emerge victorious. This act was a sharp contrast to one displayed earlier in the week by another team.

Joe Kersavage toiled on the mound for the local team and turned in an excellent performance. Kawicki and Lankin did the twirling for the visitors and although Kawicki was a little wild at times, it was a pitcher battle from the beginning.

The visitors took first blood by scoring two runs in the first frame on three hits a sacrifice and an error. The local boys retaliated and scored two in the second on three bases on balls, a hit and a sacrifice.

In the third, Northfield pushed two more tallies across on a base on balls to Johnny Kersavage, a three base hit by Williams and a single by Paul Urganiewicz. Clayt. Glazier scored again in the fourth when he got on base on error and scored on Johnny Kersavage's single. Variest, scored for the visitors in the fourth, on a single, a passed ball and an error. They also made two runs in the fifth on two singles by Joe Riel and Leterneau and a sizzling triple by "Cooch" Care. The Montague boys tried to get a winning run across in the last frame but the local boys tightened up their defense and they went out in order. The Northfield boys had better luck, for Glazier and Bob Shearer both singled, Eddie Scoble was hit by the pitcher and Johnny Kersavage knocked in the winning run on his second hit of the game. Smith: "Hope is really a wonderful thing."

Jones: "True. One little nibble keeps a man fishing all day."

With this club is "Josh" Young and "Bill" Jones, both former Harvard players who have played in former years with Hanna and Rollins of the home club. This fact should add more color to the contest.

Next Sunday Winchester will stack their wares against the Newport, N. H. American Legion Baseball Club. This team has been playing great ball in the northern part of the state and they have been frank in stating that they can take the measure of the Cheshire county team—we shall see next Sunday.

Winchester Baseball

The Winchester Baseball club came from behind today to win a free hitting contest over the Florence Braves of Northampton, Mass., 8-7. At the end of the first half of the third inning the home team was six runs behind, due principally to loose fielding which gave the visitors four runs in the first two innings, but they started to play baseball and narrowed the margin in the third and fourth by scoring two runs in each frame. In the sixth three runs tied the score and the run which proved to be the big one came in the seventh. After the fourth inning "Bill" Davis held the opposition runless.

Errors by Pete Davis and Rollins paved the way for the three run second inning for the Braves, while hits by Schuler and Boyle and another error by Davis gave the visitors two more in the third.

Winchester scored their first two tallies on successive hits by W. Davis and Hanna followed by a long double by Bent. In the fourth three more hits by Burns, Lane and P. Davis brought the New Hampshire boys' total to four. The score was knotted at seven runs apiece when four more hits in a row were registered by the home team in the sixth inning. A single by Kibbee followed by Pratt's third hit of the day and a timely single by Lane gave the Winchester boys what proved to be the deciding marker and a hard earned victory. The home club collected sixteen safe blows the most they have registered in any one game this year, while the visitors were collecting eleven ably abetted by four costly errors early in the game.

The very first batter Shepard sent a line drive to left field on the first ball pitched which Burns caught by making a running diving catch turning a complete somersault while holding the ball. This was by far the most hair-raising catch seen on Anderson field this season.
